Trivial Pursuit™

A NEW BEGINNING™

You've looked at the front of this box, and scanned the screenshots. You're probably wondering what this is all about. No, it's not more of the same.

In your hands you have a major new development in the concept of Trivial Pursuit. A team of Oxford Programmers have collaborated with Horn Abbot (the originators of the Board Game) to produce a whole new way to play the biggest selling game in the world.

It's 2045 AD and the Earth is a dying planet. Centuries of pollution have left their legacy and the world has become victim of the "greenhouse" effect. You, your family and your friends are lucky enough to have access to a number of laser-driven rockets which can propel you far away from the solar galaxy to a star constellation which contains the planet "GENUS 2". However, it has been agreed that only those who have a superior knowledge of 'Genus Trivia' will be admitted. It is not going to be that easy after all!

Different, certainly, but it retains the pure good fun of pursuing trivia that the whole family (Mum & Dad included!) enjoy enormously.
